

2014 PACC911's Lulu's Angel Fund RECIPIENTS

In 2014 over 50 animals were helped through the Lulu's Angel Fund.

Here are three of those animals' stories.

HONEY

Honey, a one year old chow mix, had never known love. When she arrived at Maricopa County's Shelter, she was diagnosed with severe demodex mange. Honey needed immediate help or she would be euthanized. Thankfully, PACC911's Lulu's Angel Fund and Mingus Manor Animal Sanctuary teamed up to save this precious girl. As her health improved, Honey blossomed in her foster home, where she enjoyed playing with her foster sisters and brothers. With the help of Lulu's Angel Fund and Mingus Manor, Honey experienced love for the first time. She has been adopted and now lives a life of fulfilled comfort and joy.

GLOVER

Glover, a young stray was hit by a car and left to die. With severe injuries after being struck, little Glover was picked up by Animal Care & Control and taken to the Maricopa County Shelter. Animal Loving Friends came forward once they heard that the PACC911 Lulu's Angel Fund was ready to help with funding. Glover was a lucky recipient of the LAF. He was rushed into surgery to be given a second chance at life. His injuries included substantial road rash, burns on his face and paws, a large laceration on the top of his head and scrapes over his entire body. The most serious injury was a degloved tail. In surgery the vets were unable to save Glover's tail and thus amputated it.

After a six week recovery, little Glover is showing his appreciation by enjoying life. He loves his human friends and his other kitty companions. He loves toys and plays pounce. We are so thankful for the chance to save Glover through our life saving fund and an amazing rescue group, Animal Loving Friends.

THOR

Left to starve in his own back yard

Thor was only two years old when he was tossed in a back yard and forgotten. His "family" was in the home. Thor was not fed for over two weeks and most likely no one even stepped outside to see him suffer day in and day out. He was starving and he was alone. When Arizona Weimaraner Rescue was alerted to Thor's situation of criminal abuse and neglect, they immediately raced to the home to rescue him. Thor was so starved and emaciated that his poor little body was in shock. Another day or perhaps another hour and Thor would not have survived. Thor weighed only 40 pounds at the time of his rescue, half of the weight he should have been.

Arizona Weimaraner Rescue needed funds to save this beautiful and very sick boy and PACC911's Lulu's Angel Fund was there to help. Thor was given immediate veterinary care and was very fortunate that he suffered no organ damage from his starvation. His recovery was very touch and go for a while, but Thor had a great will to live. All necessary medical care was provided to save Thor's precious life, thanks to the Lulu's Angel Fund.

With the love of a fabulous foster family, he not only gained his weight back, but also gained a new sense of self! His self-confidence was apparent as he experienced love, kindness and the companionship of many other resident rescues in his new foster home. Now in his own home, Thor lives with three other rescue dogs and three rescue cats. He is a sweetheart and loves them all.
